

Hi there,

September 30 is the National Day for Truth and Reconciliation. This holiday is observed in memory of Indigenous children who perished in the residential school system.

It is a paid stat holiday for federally regulated workers and in some provinces. If it is not a public holiday in your province, you still have the option to acknowledge it and give your staff the day off.

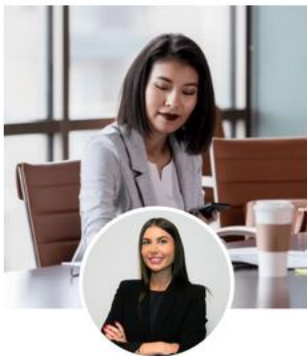

To learn more about this holiday and the various ways you can show support, check out our blog by Kiljon Shukullari below.

This month, our experts offer advice on building an inclusive, secure, and efficient workplace. Find out how to use AI tools without compromising business secrets, protect your Indigenous staff from discrimination, and spruce up those dull out-of-office emails.

As a Peninsula client, you can count on 24/7 expert support to help you save time, costs, and unnecessary stress. Book an appointment today.

Request an appointment

Blog resources to help you grow your business

30% of Canadian Employers Worry About Security Risks Posed by AI

Are you ready for the AI revolution? Well, not so fast. In our latest survey, 30% of Canadian employers say they're worried about the risk AI poses to security. We explore what that could mean for your workplace policies.

Read time
2 mins

Read More

How to Prevent Indigenous Discrimination in the Workplace

In a recent national survey, 40% of Indigenous employees say they've experienced discrimination at work. Meanwhile, 60% feel physically unsafe. As an employer, here's how you can prevent discrimination against Indigenous and First Nations employees at your workplace.

Read time
7 mins

Read More

NATIONAL DAY FOR TRUTH AND RECONCILIATION

Your Guide to the National Day for Truth and Reconciliation

September 30 is the National Day for Truth and Reconciliation. Do you know the significance of this day? Is it a stat holiday? Are there assistance programs available to employees? We answer these questions and more in our blog.

Read time
3 mins

Read More

How To Improve Your Out-of- office Messages

Do you know the etiquettes of out-of-office messages? Are your OOO emails missing key information? Kiljon Shukullari spoke to Advisor's Edge about what you should include in your internal and external OOO emails and more.

Read time
4 mins

Read More

Meet Peninsula's Service Employee of the Month

Congratulations to our service employee of the month! Ermias consistently embodies the core values of Peninsula through his distinguished interactions with our clients and collaboration with the OHS advice team.

PENINSULA

SERVICE EMPLOYEE OF THE MONTH

Do you need to speak with one of our consultants?

Book your HR documentation or health & safety review at the touch of a button with the NEW Request an appointment Feature on BrightHR

Request an appointment

